UPDATE: Future Events Occurring As Stated, Opening The Floor, AMA

claim / theory / question

I posted around 11 days ago about a time travel experiment I performed, successfully, which has put me in communication with the future. As proof, I shared multiple detailed predictions about major news stories that would occur over the course of the next few weeks. Those events have occurred exactly as stated.

I have made a few more additional statements about future events as stated and encourage people to run their own VoiceTracer experiment while I set up my research blog. While I'm here, though, I felt like it would help to share some of what I've learned of the future and encourage others to try it out.

For the record, I am a time traveler, by whatever metric you could probably come up with. There's a lot more from my past that I'm not sharing, especially as some of that involves knowledge of the future. This is a DIY time travel experiment and I'm working on others, including an app to track and rate anachronistic historical data, which is present in history books already. I've already got a small personal archive going, with some very robust investigation files, by my present standards.

I do need more resources to continue the research, though. No lottery tickets, the karmic lashback from accepting someone else's future funds is too much to risk. I've got information that's much more valuable than any financial currency. I'm hoping to find someone who might be willing to invest in or fund further research in more stringent laboratory conditions, but most major institutions think time travel is a joke.

I'm here to answer any questions about future events and make further predictions, so that the body of proof is enough to show that these aren't educated guesses but actual future knowledge that was received in communication. If anyone has specific questions aimed at proving that or questioning that, I'm here to answer.

Funding for a time travel experiment?!?! Sign me up!!

Not really though. The whole 'no lottery tickets cause karma' isn't very scientific. Either you can tell the future. In which case great, I will absolutely fund your research into what future lottery numbers to play, cause why invest with no ROI. Or, more likely in my estimation, you can't tell the future.

If you hate the lottery for some reason I'll take any other solidly credible investment lead, though you'd have to sign some contract accepting any liability of loss. Though if you KNOW the future that shouldn't really be an issue for you, as you would KNOW there would be no loss.

Would invest in either scenario. Other than that, no, I don't think anyone will invest anything to let you record yourself...

Edit - or you could make these financial moves yourself. Cause you know the future. Or rather, if you did know the future, you could raise your own funds...

Well, don't forget, he already made a bunch of predictions and they came true. I'm surprised he didn't link up those predictions, though. You'd think he'd be pretty excited to share them.

This guy is either A) incredibly and unfortunately unmediated in his mental illness, or B) a complete grifting piece of shit loser.

I know which one makes more sense based on the "give me money, begging for cash is moral, but simply playing the stock market or winning the lotto isn't".

Lol OP that's not how predictions work. If you want to demonstrate that you can see the future, you make the predictions, state them clearly here on the subreddit, then post again after your predictions come true. Any schlub can point to current events and yell "aha, my predictions that I made in the past came true!"

If there is no way to verify that you made the predictions then what reason would we have to believe you?

MathematicianNo6402 • 17h ago

Seems how he/she is asking for money I'd be willing to predict he's looking for a certain type of very gullible, very desperate person. Kinda like a 2024 version of Mrs Cleo 🤔

2 let that sit, then at a later date play it back at zero volume while also recording me talking again? Am I making up answers to the first recording or talking about something else entirely or what?

3 play both recordings back at an audible volume. What am I doing when both are playing back? How does the prediction occur?

bitesized-planetoid • 22h ago • Edited 22h ago

The prediction should occur in step 1 because that's the only point where the revelations in step 2 are unknown.

OP - please clarify how the predictions occur in step 1. Do I just ask yes/no questions and take a guess and write down the answer ?

What structures of information were you able to pass back to the past: yes/no, numerical, categorical or even free text ? Like the detailed election results you posted, how exactly did you structure the questions in the first recording to receive that kind of information ?

Btw a good way to code and receive information might be via cards of symbols or numbers.

In the past:

1. Write down your question about a future event, and list different potential outcomes, you could have "other" as a final outcome
2. lay out the cards with different symbols openly in front of you
3. Mark each potential outcome with a different symbol you have in your deck of cards
4. now choose a symbol, quickly based on first intuition (don't think too hard), this is your prediction. I suppose you need to block out your educated guesses about the most likely outcome somehow.

In the future: Just try to send back the event outcome symbol, by thinking about it, not sure the audio is even required. If you have multiple questions you could circle the symbols where you have written down the potential answers and think about them one after another.

If you are in sync with your past self it might work :)

He will not be the candidate due in part to circumstances involving a criminal investigation, but not because he is the target of it. He will frame it as a retirement from politics and it will occur a lot closer to the election than people would have thought.

↑ 7 ↓ ...

1shoedpunk OP • 1d ago

Disclosure is occurring, government records are not as detailed on these phenomena as many would believe. Most interactions are covered up by groups far outside of world governments and the source of those phenomena usually intentionally cover their tracks. There's always more news, but you aren't going to see much coming from the US federal government more than what we're getting now. That doesn't mean that a lot of new information doesn't come out, but it's mostly from other sources like independent witnesses and researchers.

when did I park my time machine?

In your research

Have you come to any inclusions if past or future events can be changed by knowledge of what is about to happen

Or in other words;

Does your research point to a dynamic timeline or a fixed one?

1shoedpunk OP • 1d ago

It is a fixed timeline with the "Multiverse" representing the concept of a dynamic one. However, that doesn't mean that events can't be affected, it just means that this is the timeline where all of that time travel has already occurred. The "Multiverse" are events out of sequence or placed in parallel in our memory. The multiversal spacing problem is one of misperception of what those events and places actually are.

7

sir_duckingtale • 1d ago

Not changing, but affecting. The past is a foreign country, so you'll affect things, but you might not have expected to affect them in that way.

Home prices will go up nationally, but down regionally. There will be a resolution to the housing crisis in terms of providing access directly to properties that are vacant. It will be financially viable and while the property investors are going to be beyond livid, they don't really have a choice whether or not to sell to a buyer just because they disagree with who the buyer is.

Okay the Gaza one is interesting, I remember reading your prediction and laughing because it sounded so fake and off the table at the time, but literally after the Rafah invasion and the beheaded child video, that changed everything in my opinion and a ceasefire is on the table with Isreal right when you said.

So I'm skeptical, but more open minded now...

My questions would be, as capitalism continues to degrade into the future and job replacement by ai and robots becomes more obvious, will we shift successfully into an alternative economic system?

Whether it be some middle ground UBI based system or a Soviet style planned economy? Will capitalism survive these upcoming changes or will it wither away into a Star Trek like system?

And lastly as humans, will we achieve longevity escape velocity? Will we solve immortality, or near immortality within the next decade or two? (As predicted by many in the field). If so, how would that change things.

Oh one more! Will humans unite into a world wide governmental structure? Will we officially come together? Into a federation of countries possibly with some existing level of regional sovereignty?
